

Final Conference

“The MedSpring legacy for Euro-Mediterranean Cooperation on R&I”

Brussels-BE, 7th July 2017

Venue: A. Borschette Congress Center (CCAB) – Rue Froissart 36, Brussels

Concept

MedSpring is an EU funded “IncoNet” support action, aimed at strengthening Research and Innovation networking, cooperation and dialogue on water, food and energy among EU and non-EU Mediterranean countries. The project, whose activities started in February 2013, has several interlinked objectives and is implemented through different types and levels of activities, ranging from management of a Euro-Mediterranean thematic think tank to the implementation of capacity building activities, training, stakeholder and institutional awareness raising, mobility of young innovative idea carriers through brokerage, networking and innovation events. The event aims at presenting the activities and results of the project considered as the main legacy of MedSpring. To better convey the concept that has characterised and supported Medspring throughout its implementation, MedSpring partners will be joined by testimonials - young innovators, researchers and cooperation actors - who can bear witness to the project positive impact and benefits while outlining remaining gaps and constraints. The members of the project External Advisory Board (senior and high level policy and research testimonials) will also intervene. The event intends to reach and engage in an open debate different people and stakeholders interested in Euro-Mediterranean cooperation on research & innovation: EU officers, Parliamentary members, research organisations, innovation actors, youths, private sector, public/governmental administrations, NGOs (including representatives of the civil society). The discussion will deliver a “reflection note” on new tools and actions needed to fill remaining gaps “after MedSpring” and capitalise/valorise the project legacy.
